Cardinal Farley officiated at the dediation of the new parochial school of Bernard's Roman Catholic Church, Thirteenth Street, near Ninth Avenue, vesterday afternoon. In his address he said if the authorities came to him nd offered to maintain all the schools of the diocese with city money on condition that religious training be left out he would refuse. An audience that rowded the auditorium applauded the

The ceremonles included a procession intrough the streets of the parish, the unveiling and blessing of a statue of St. Bernard which is to adorn the front of the building, the blessing of the school and addresses by the Rev. Joseph F. Smith, pastor of the church, and Cardinal Farley. The Rev. Dr. William J. Kerby, of the Catholic University of Washington, who was to speak, was taken ill after reaching the city and his address was read by the Rev. John J. Burke.

The procession, made up of the Knights of Columbus, Boy Scouts, a delegation of the Ancient Order of Historians and boys and girls of the school with United States flags, formed at Seventh Avenue and Fourteenth Street and marched to the school. After singing by the children Cardinal Farley blessed the statue.

Because of the non-intervention and pacifist policies announced by President Wilson and Secretary Bryan in 1913, it is declared, American influence in the Far East has dwindled to nothing, while Japan and Russia, in their new treaty, have divided the field between themselves. Lack of military preparation, it is asserted, made it impossible, even had President Wilson desired to, for the United States to act when the recent Russo-Japanese treaty was promulgated, though the State Department at any time a communication that would give the conference a new aspect.

Jap Policy Hinders Plan

The Administration lately has endeavored to restore American influence in China, and has announced from time to time that its efforts were advancing satisfactorily. In the face of the Russo-Japanese arrangement, however, the progress of these efforts has really been negligible. Unable to cope with the essential fact that Japan is ready to defend her position, the Administration has been embarrassed at every turn by Japanese obstruction.

In March, 1913, President Wilson announced his new policy, that the United States government would not be responsible for American capital invested in China. Like his principle of "Mexico for the Mexicans," it was avowedly a theory of "China for the Chinese." It has resulted, however, in an actual condition of "China for the Japanese and Russians," bankers point out, and has closed the door to American business and American capital.

That Japan, backed by Russia, is de-

Vigorous Stand Demanded
Only a vigorous championing of the open-door policy, backed by adequate naval and military preparedness, can thwart this plan, it is declared. It is, therefore, the anti-preparedness doctrines of Wilson and Bryan that are held basically responsible for America's exclusion from the Far Eastern field.
Because of the pacifist policies that prevailed here for the first three years of the Wilson Administration it will be a long time before the United States is prepared to assert its rights in China, Onto a long time before the United States is prepared to assert its rights in China, it is pointed out. While Japan was building ships the Administration was content with a Pacific fleet composed of antiquated cruisers and gunboats, without a single modern battleship, and the construction of two dreadnoughts authorized by Congress for the main battle fleet was delayed for eighteen months.

Japan Starts Inquiry

Tokio, Oct. 15.—Admission was made at the Foreign Office to-day that the Japanese government had begun an inquiry into the granting by the Chinese government of a concession for the reconstruction of part of the Grand Canal in Shantung Province to the Siems-Carey Company, of St. Paul, Minn.
